

TIME OUT

Music & Lyric by Joy Katzen-Guthrie · ©1992 by Joy Katzen-Guthrie · All Rights Reserved

We've been passing each other from room to room, ready to smother from the weight of this gloom.
No eyes meeting, nothing said,
but somehow the silence screams in my head.

You've got your problems, and so do I:
they burn beneath the bandage of guilt we apply.
The money's a struggle, the job's a strain.
We seal our hearts to shut out the pain.

All I ask is that you listen and see. I'll tell you how we'll be free ...

CHORUS:

All we need is time out, time far away,
time out, from this rainy day,
Learning to love in our own space,
facing the future at our own pace.
I'm calling for time out — for you and me.

I've forgotten your loving touch,
the sensuous kisses I cherished so much.
I yearn to hold you in my arms again,
and I crave the friendship we had back then.

We need our freedom, one great escape,
together alone without any red tape,
To find ourselves and to discover once more the treasure we had before.

It's not too late to stop this merry-go-round. Just put two feet on the ground

CHORUS:

All we need is time out, time far away,
time out, our own holiday,
Learning to love in our own space,
facing the future at our own pace.
I'm calling for time out — for you and me.

We've still got each other as friend and lover, witnessing an awakening,
To build together a dream to weather any storm that the world can bring.

CHORUS:

All we need is time out, time far away,
time out, from this rainy day,
Learning to love in our own space,
facing the future at our own pace.
I'm calling for time out — for you and me.
I'm calling for time out — for you and me.
